Fishing Magician

Dave Graybill

Reach Dave @ www.FishingMagician.com or FishBoy@nwi.net "The Outdoor Insider"

We are in for another spell of hot weather as summer tails off and we look forward to fall. For many this is the best time of year to be out on the water fishing somewhere in the region. Not only can the fishing be excellent for a variety of species on our area lakes, but also the fall salmon fishing gets going in earnest.

I finally made it to Banks Lake. Brian Neilson and Mike Wren met me at the Northrop Boat launch, we decided on a strategy for the day and away we went. We were concerned about the lake level. It was very low for this time of year. Because of this, I had been warned that probably the only usable launches were at Northrup and Coulee Playland. We also noticed that the forecast predicted the possibility of high wind later in the day. Keeping our fingers crossed we ran up to Jones Bay for a quick visit for the video I was doing. Jones is a small, narrow bay that can be very productive. There is a distinct weed line here, and in the spring this can be a good place to troll, even with side planers. Then we stopped at Devils Punch Bowl, and in the video I mentioned the excellent launch at the State Park on Steamboat Rock. We didn't fish these areas, but they need to be included as good places to fish for walleye on Banks. I will remind folks that I did a video earlier this spring on walleye fishing with side planers, and that was shot in Devil's Punch Bowl. We did put our gear out on the back side of Steamboat Rock.

Brian Neilson mentioned that he had found fish here in over 50 feet of water on previous trips to Banks. Turns out he was right about that on this trip, too. Mike Wren landed a 24 inch walleye and minutes later Brian got a 27 inch fish. Not a bad start for the day. Then we made the run over to Barker Flats to include this area in the video, as it is one of the most fished walleye spots on Banks. We only ran at a slow speed over the flats just to see if we could find any walleye. We just didn't see enough fish on the screen to tempt us to put our gear out. Traveling back across the reservoir, we trolled along the sand flats just up lake from "The Poplars". I shot some video so people could recognize that spot, and we landed a few more walleye here. From there I drove the boat further down the lake. I made sure we showed "Rosebush" in the project and then trolled for a while along the Million Dollar Mile. We got some more walleye trolling from the North Million Dollar Mile boat launch up towards Rosebush. We got a couple of smallmouth here, too. Boaters should know that launching is difficult right now, due to the low water. The video I shot has been posted to the Dave Graybill YouTube channel. Look for "Walleye Fishing Hot Spots on Banks Lake". This week's photo is of Brian and Mike holding up the first two fish we landed on Banks that day.

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife is seeking public feedback on a proposed change for the yellow perch fishing rule at Fish Lake in Leavenworth. The proposal would erase the current daily fishing limit of 25 yellow perch fish at the lake. The state hopes that this change would increase angler opportunities for harvesting more yellow perch and improve the average size of fish from the lake, according to a press release. Also, there is a proposal for Park, Blue, and Deep lakes in Grant County to extend the current fishing season closure date from Sept. 30 to Oct. 31. This change aims to provide additional angling opportunities during the productive fall trout fishing season. As a part of the rule-making process, WDFW is seeking public comment on the proposal and holding a virtual public meeting. Public comments can be submitted online until the virtual meeting from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. on Sept. 10.

The Washington Department of Fish and Wildlife wants to remind anglers that the Annual Trout Derby is still going on. The popular tagged trout derby on inland lakes starts with the opening of the lowland lakes in April and runs through October 31st on the lakes that are open in that time frame. There are still lots of great prizes available to be claimed by lucky anglers that catch a tagged trout. To learn more about the derby, log on to the WDFW website and click on Fishing and Shellfishing. Right at the top of the list is the 2024 Trout Derby. Click on this and it will take you to a page with all the details about which lakes have tagged trout in them. You will also learn what to do when you catch a tagged trout to claim your prize.

The next trip I have planned is to fish off the mouth of Crab Creek below Wanapum Dam. This area opens on September 1st every year, and although the number of fall salmon that have passed over Priest Rapids is actually pretty small, it can be surprisingly good. Fall salmon are starting to pour over Bonneville Dam, with over 28,000 counted in one day. What people can expect to catch is a mix of late-arriving summer runs and fall fish. The daily limit here is six fish, with only two adults to be retained. You must release all salmon other than Chinook.

I first fished this area, probably twenty years ago, with Jerrod Gibbons and we were pulling big Mag Warts for our fish. I have also fished here several times with Shane Magnuson, and we have caught some dandies tolling Super Baits. One trip was particularly memorable, as Shane didn't have a net in the boat. I watched him heft several big kings into the boat bare handed!

My fishing partners and I don't really have high expectations for catching a bunch of kings on the opening day of the season off of Crab Creek. It gives us a good reason to get all our gear ready for future trips, and I will be shooting a video to help people who plan to fish this area later in the season. It's going to be great to be back out on the Columbia River!

SALE of FIREARMS

Effective January 1, 2024

Final Bill Report E2SHB 1143

Concerning Requirements for the Purchase or Transfer of firearms in Washington State

SUMMARY

A dealer may not transfer any firearm to a purchaser or transferee until: completion of a background check indicating the person is eligible to possess a firearm; and 10 business days have elapsed since the dealer requested the background check.

In addition, a dealer may not transfer any firearm to a purchaser or transferee unless the person produces proof of completion of a recognized firearms safety training program within the last five years, or proof of an exemption from the training requirement. The training program must include instruction on components currently required for firearms safety training for semiautomatic assault rifle purchases and in addition must include instruction on: state laws pertaining to the use of deadly force for self-defense; and techniques for avoiding a criminal attack and how to manage a violent confrontation. Proof of training must be in the form of a certification stating under penalty of perjury that the training included the minimum requirements.

EXEMPTIONS FROM THE TRAINING REQUIREMENT ARE PROVIDED FOR:

- General Authority Washington Peace Officers and the following Peace Officers who have arrest powers and carry a firearm: limited authority Washington peace officers, specially commissioned Washington peace officers, and federal peace officers; and
- Military Members who have completed firearms training within the last five years as part of service that included training on the safe handling of, and shooting proficiency with, firearms.

Provisions governing investigative holds on the delivery of a firearm based on outstanding warrants or open or pending criminal charges are eliminated.

Firearm transfer and background check processes are revised to conform to procedures that will apply upon implementation of the state firearms background check program, including requiring background checks through the WSP Firearms Background Check Program rather than local law enforcement agencies. A dealer must transmit the information from a firearms purchase application through secure automated firearms e-check (SAFE) to the WSP Firearms Background Check Program. The WSP Firearms Background Check Program must transmit the application information to the DOL daily. The fee applicable to the purchase or transfer of semiautomatic assault rifles is eliminated.

A court must notify a person who is convicted of an offense that makes the person ineligible to possess a firearm under federal law, including specified convictions for possession of controlled substances, that the person must immediately surrender any CPL and that the person may not possess a firearm unless his or her right to do so is restored. The court must also forward a copy of the person's identifying information to the DOL and the WSP, and the DOL must determine if the person has a CPL, and if so, notify the license issuing authority, which must immediately revoke the CPL.

IS THERE A CONNECTION BETWEEN OLD CONCRETE & WATER QUALITY? Part 2

New Study to Identify Possible Pollution & Guide the Industry

Concrete rubble piles like this one are stored at facilities across the state.

Concrete structures like buildings, foundations, and sidewalks, might seem like they will last forever, but modern-day concrete structures generally do not last longer than 50 to 100 years. Concrete is widely used in construction because it is resilient, affordable, and easily available. At the end of their use, concrete structures and products are demolished into rubble (broken up pieces). This rubble can get stored, recycled and reused as building material for structures, roads, sidewalks, and other uses.

We've started a new study to learn more about concrete rubble in Washington. We are measuring pH, metals, and other properties of the water that interacts with concrete rubble. The study will investigate if water quality is affected when rainwater mixes with concrete rubble stored for future recycling.

You're basic! Even for concrete it's a bad thing!

pH is the measurement that tells us whether something is acidic or basic, also called alkaline. Too acidic or too basic can be bad for the environment. The tap water we drink is generally around a 7 on the pH scale, also called a neutral pH.

Rainwater that mingles with concrete rubble and flows from storage piles is commonly called leachate and often discharges to water bodies or groundwater. One potential concern from concrete rubble is the pH of this leachate. When concrete is demolished, the freshly crushed material has a high pH value and is basic. If rain falls on improperly managed and newly crushed concrete rubble, the leachate can make receiving waters more basic and more turbid (cloudy), which may harm aquatic life. As concrete sits over time, it absorbs carbon dioxide and becomes more neutral.

Other potential chemicals

Our literature review found that concrete rubble has the potential to release some chemicals at levels that are above the state's water quality standards. However, the release of contaminants is dependent on several factors (such as pH, particle size, and age of the concrete). We found that the potential contaminants that could leach from concrete rubble are antimony, arsenic, barium, chromium, copper, lead, manganese, mercury, nickel, selenium, sulfur (as sulfate), and zinc. The study will evaluate if these contaminants are in concrete leachate and if they meet the state water quality standards. If any issues are discovered, we will determine the next steps to better protect waterbodies and groundwater.

Since the literature review didn't have any Washington specific information, we don't know how the data we reviewed compares to Washington concrete mixtures and if they are leaching out. With this in mind, we want to learn more about Washington's permitted Sand and Gravel facilities to ensure the current management practices are preventing pollutants from concrete rubble from ending up in the water.

Studying Washington facilities

Washington concrete manufacturing and recycling facilities are already helping prevent concrete rubble runoff from affecting water quality. Our Sand and Gravel Permit requires facilities to develop site management plans, avoid placing stockpiles near surface water, not discharge water above a pH of 8.5 or below a pH of 6.5, and ensure there are no harmful substances in recycled concrete (like lead, asbestos, or PCBs). If concrete rubble is stored near drinking water wells, irrigation wells, or shallow groundwater, facilities follow additional groundwater monitoring requirements.

Our new study will allow us to characterize the amount and type of pollutants in discharges to waterbodies and groundwater and determine if permit updates are needed to better protect water quality. We plan to sample 80 facilities for antimony, arsenic, barium, chromium, copper, lead, manganese, mercury, nickel, selenium, sulfur (as sulfate), zinc, and pH and other field parameters. Our team at the Manchester Environmental Laboratory will analyze the samples. We have also worked with the Washington Aggregates & Concrete Association in developing this study.

For more study details, read the Quality Assurance Project Plan which describes the schedule, design, and the field and laboratory procedures.

We are excited to have our teams out in the field, working with facilities, and look forward to sharing the results before proposing any changes to the Sand and Gravel General Permit.

Scan to Read

Tapwater generally has a pH of 7 which is neutral, at the center of the scale. Water that is at either end of the scale isn't healthy for most aquatic life.

KLEYN CAPTURES SECOND RACE AT HERMISTON

Hermiston, Oregon — Kasey Kleyn got his Northwest Late Model Series championship ambitions back in gear by winning his fourth race of the season in the Labor Day Spectacular 125 at Hermiston Raceway on Aug. 31.

Ephrata's Kleyn, who took the lead for good on lap 104 finished ahead of Andrew Riehl from Corbett, Oregon and Kennewick's Trace Thompson and were among six drivers completing all 125 laps. Kleyn also won at Hermiston on June 15.

Kleyn, who missed the Aug. 10 race while participating in an ARCA West Race in Tri Cities, entered this race with a 20-point lead in series points over Ken Bonney.

Kleyn collected 59 points for the win while Bonney, who finished 12th, unofficially fell back another 16 with two races remaining, Sept. 14 at Wenatchee and Oct. 6 at Tri City Raceway and the Fall Classic.

STATELINE SPEEDWAY TO UNVEIL NEW MULTI-USE SPORTS FIELD

Post Falls, ID – Stateline Speedway announced the completion of a brand-new multi-use sports field.

The field will host its inaugural event on Sept. 21 with a rugby tournament, marking the beginning of a new era for sports and entertainment at the facility.

The field is located to the west of the main speedway grandstand in an area that formerly featured parking.

"This has been a work in progress for over 4 years now," track general manager Matt Alexander, wrote in an email.

The versatile field is designed to serve a wide range of community needs, from school sports to recreational leagues, local sports clubs, and beyond. In addition to sporting events, the field will be a hub for festivals, concerts, and other community gatherings.

"With the combination of our racetrack and now a multi-use field, the possibilities are endless for the types of events we can host, providing even more family entertainment to our local community," Alexander said.

A ribbon cutting ceremony will be held Friday, Sept. 20, at 4 p.m.
